Limited License Agrologist "LLAg"
Admission Request Form

The BC Institute of Agrologists ("BCIA") is the regulatory body for agrology professionals in BC, including Professional Agrologists (PAg), Articling Agrologists (AAg), Technical Agrologists (TAg), and Articling Technical Agrologists (ATAg).

One must be registered with the Institute as a registrant to practise professional agrology in BC. The alternate route of entry for those seeking the right to practise professional agrology on a restricted basis, who cannot meet the requirements for any of the professional designations, is through a Limited License. The work specified in the Limited License application must fall within the regulated practice of agrology.

After being approved for registration, applicants are placed on a temporary hold. Once the applicant completes all LLAg Admission Program duties and responsibilities and the BCIA office is notified, Limited License Agrologist (LLAg) is granted.

LLAg Admission Eligibility

Applicants for the LLAg designation must have a minimum of five (5) years of experience in agrology. At least two years of this experience must be within the agrology practice area to which the Limited Licence will apply. BCIA will review applications on a case-by-case basis. Applicants who have completed post-secondary education must include this information in their application package. BCIA will use this information to determine whether a higher-level application pathway (at a minimum, ATAg or Expedited TAg) is more appropriate based on the applicant's education or combination of education and work experience.

LLAg Admission Process

1. Apply to BCIA and meet all application fee requirements
2. Submit a detailed resume or curriculum vitae that includes month/year dates
3. Submit the intended practice area form
4. Submit the work history form
5. Submit the two letters of reference forms indicating start/end dates and full description of experience obtained
6. If applicable, arrange for educational institutions to mail or email official transcripts for all credentials, including transfer credits, directly to BCIA.

Once all required documents are received, the BCIA will assess the application and determine a decision. Registration is subject to the Professional Governance Act [SBC 2018] CHAPTER 47 and the BCIA Bylaws

Please read below important details regarding the requirements of the Expedited Admission Program, then sign, declaring adherence to the Duties and Responsibilities. Upload to the online application.

LLAg Admission Duties and Responsibilities

Applicants approved for the LLAg Admission Program must complete the following before being granted full status:

1. Meet any additional educational conditions, if any, set by BCIA
2. Immediately upon notification of acceptance, complete:
   a. Orientation to BCIA course
   b. Professional Negligence and Regulatory Offences course
   c. Professional Ethics for Agrologists course
   d. Foundational Indigenous Awareness Training course

I request consideration under the BCIA LLAg Admission Program. I agree to meet the duties, responsibilities and timelines listed above. I understand that my registration will be held pending completion of all requirements and that I will be granted full status once I have completed those requirements and notified the BCIA office.

I agree to pay the licence to practise fee upon being activated as a full status registrant.
